

There is no hard evidence that cell phone use doesn't interfere with navigational instruments.

Cell phone use would enable terrorists to coordinate a plan of action more effectively.

The NPRM would leave it up to flight attendants to police the use of cell phones onboard the aircraft compromising our ability to maintain a safe, secure cabin environment and to conduct emergency evacuations.

It would make an already tense cabin environment even more stressful.

The idea that there would be cell phone use on the planes deeply scares me. Its hard enough right now trying to get people to listen as it is, but allowing them to use their cell phones almost assures that in an emergency situation they would have no idea what to do.

Please consider the flight attendants!!
